

Seeds for the Garden of Life by Jerry Lazarus

The most important seeds ever planted are the ones that blossom in the garden of life. When these seeds are sown carefully and tenderly, they produce a garden that beautifies and enriches life for all who may step onto your path.

Instructions for planting the seeds of the Spirit in the garden of life:

Love: Perennial evergreen if planted with attentive care. Sow this seed anywhere and year-round. Fruit is green, but if allowed to mature, will turn a golden orange. Bears fruit first season, but the yield grows more prolific as the plant matures. Hardy, self-seeding.

Patience: Seeds won't germinate outside if sowed too early. Best if started indoors; transplant outside after frost. Will bear large fruit if allowed to grow until the end of fruiting season. Easy to propagate in your home garden. Curbs impatiens overgrowth. Beware of complacency seeds masquerading as Patience.

Faith: For best results, before seeding, improve the soil with hope. Though as tiny as the black mustard seeds, if faithfully nurtured, they'll produce beyond measure the "things hoped for." For vigorous growth, plant alongside Patience. Doubt intolerant.

Kindness: Excellent when mixed in with love. Germinates quickly. Make sure to water regularly and the yield will be plentiful. Attracts many beneficial creatures, including friends, neighbors, and strangers. Top seller!

Joy: Annual. Must seed each year for new growth. Luminescent, sweet-smelling, yellow blooms will attract butterflies and hummingbirds, and are sure to make your children and neighbors happy.

Long-suffering: These will endure every condition: droughts, flooding, hurricanes, diseases and pests, lightning strikes, fire, hail, storms, and tornadoes. May take time to see results. Sustainable if planted with Faith and Joy. Support the fruits until harvest.

Truthfulness: This is a natural deterrent for all types of pests and will keep a garden looking beautiful and healthy. Sow in between rows. Fragrant and attractive blooms. Self-pollinating.

Generosity: Prolific growth and fruiting year-round. Because of heavy fruiting, it's a favorite to share with neighbors. Makes an excellent gift, especially during the holiday season.

Peace: Companion planting with Tolerance recommended. Once germinated, will grow with all combination of plants. Can endure harsh conditions. Regular picking provides a continuous supply of fresh Peace. Everyone seems to get along when Peace is planted with Tolerance.

Humility: This lowly plant will grow anywhere and everywhere, producing stunningly gorgeous burgundy florets. Their fragrance is unlike any other, though these heirloom seeds are a rare find.

Sincerity: Having brilliant and beautiful foliage, their fruits are succulent and delicious. For a garden full of life, all seeds must be sown with Sincerity. Fruit is full of character.

Cooperation: Will adapt to any conditions. For optimal yield, plant on common ground. Promotes cross-pollination among all. A favorite of community gardens.

Special Instructions: Do not use pesticides such as hate, jealousy, hastiness, anger, fear, arrogance, blame, or belittling. Although they may provide short-term relief, in the end they are toxic to plants, soil, and gardeners.

Before planting, remove weeds, prepare soil with fertilizers such as openness, willingness, and thoughtfulness. These will help seeds to establish and roots to grow. Choose your seeds well. For, every seed will bring forth its own kind.

After removing weeds of procrastination, sow the seeds of life in fertile ground of new hearts! Sow bountifully to reap bountifully.

These certified organic seeds can be grown in all zones. Call now, guidance is only a heartbeat away! Master Gardner is standing by!

“For unless ye plant, unless ye sow the seed of the Spirit, thy house will indeed tumble about thy head.” (Edgar Cayce, 1797-1)

“Each thought, as things, has its seed, and if planted, or when sown in one or another ground, brings its own fruit; for thoughts are things, and as their currents run must bring their own seed.” (Edgar Cayce, 288-29)

“Do not attempt to make seed grow! Sow them in kindness; water them in love; nourish them in patience. For God alone gives the increase!” (Edgar Cayce, 1877-1)

“Let that thou sowest in thy relationships day by day be the seeds of truth, of hope, that as they grow to fruition in thy relationships, as the days and the months and the years that are to come go by, they will grow into that garden of beauty that makes indeed for the home.” (Edgar Cayce, 480-20)

“Though the harvest at present seems scant, though many discouraging things come into thine experience, with work and labor and prayer the harvest will be great.” (Edgar Cayce, 262-61)

“He who sows sparingly will also reap sparingly, and he who sows bountifully will also reap bountifully.” (2 Corinthians 9:6)
